

MACON'S CREW UNCERTAIN AS CRASH CAUSE

Testimony Heard by Inquiry Board to be Kept Secret?

San Francisco, Feb. 14.—(AP)—The cause of the "shudder" which meant death to two men and the sensational end of the giant dirigible Macon was sought today by a naval court of inquiry in the first of a series of promised governmental investigations.

Even the surviving 81 officers and men of the silver sky queen which crashed and sank in the Pacific ocean Tuesday night were not sure what caused that quiver to run the length of the Macon and subsequently rip away two of her vital gas cells.

Lieut. Commander H. V. Wiley, survivor of the Akron disaster had master of the Macon, had "some ideas" about it but declined to discuss them. He began questioning the crew when they returned to the Macon's vacant hangar at Sunnyvale yesterday and called them to assemble at noon today.

May Guard Testimony
His findings will be placed before the naval board of inquiry. Whether testimony before the board will be made public immediately was to be determined after it assembled aboard the U. S. S. Tennessee in San Francisco Bay at 11:30 A. M. CST.

Three proposals to investigate the crash were made in Washington as President Roosevelt said there would be no immediate move to replace the greatest airship the world has ever seen.

There were a few dissenting voices, but official Washington was inclined to view the Macon's loss as indicating a halt in the navy's development of the dirigible, temporarily if not permanently.

Weather Not Cause
As to the original cause of the crash, survivors and observers were agreed on only one thing—that the usually weather played only a very minor part.

There were hints of some possible structural weakness in the stern of the $2,450,000 ship, but naval officials would make no definite statement regarding such a possibility. They talked freely only on the heroism of the aircraft crew and the remarkable efficiency of the navy in rescuing all but two of the 83 aboard.

Survivors told the dramatic story of the air queen's end and their rescue from the murky Pacific 125 miles south of San Francisco off point Sur.

Short Jar Was Felt
Cruising at a speed of 63 knots, the ship had twice lowered her elevation to duck rain squalls, Commander Wiley related, "when a short jar was felt."

"Upon inquiry of the elevator man (who controls the rudder guiding the ship's altitude) I was informed the wheel had slipped out of his hands." He went on, "The ship began to take a bow-up inclination and rose. Apparently the elevator man did not have control. Immediately I received a report from the aft that No. 1 cell one of the 12 helium gas cells which kept the craft aloft in mid-air) was gone."

Ship Rose Rapidly
Then the Macon rose rapidly to 4,600 feet, her nose sticking at a sharp angle above the stern, and as the crew dived the forward gas chambers and threw ballast from the stern in an attempt to fight the lurching ship.

As she landed heavily on her stern, sailors and officers slid down ropes, that burned their hands and legs, or dived into the heavy swells. Twenty-two men who had gone forward as a futile ballast slid down a "horribly long" 125 feet of rope from the nose to the water, each carried a flashlight, making the descent column look like a parade of fireflies.

Will Palmer, Former Grand Detour Man, is Dead in California

Mrs. C. F. Rosbrook this morning received a telegram announcing the death of her uncle, William Palmer, formerly of Grand Detour, at San Fernando, Calif. last Sunday. The message also stated that burial took place in the California city yesterday. Mr. Palmer, who was born above Grand Detour and who spent all of his life until several years ago in that vicinity, will be remembered by many in the community.

A. L. Owen, residing south of the city, was held to the April grand jury under bond of $2,500 at a hearing conducted before Justice Grover W. Gehant this morning, charging him with a statutory offense against a 13 year old female child. Owen was represented by Attorney Mark C. Keller and in default of bond was returned to the county jail.

-- BOYS GOVERN --

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP)—If inquiry is made today as to who chances to occupy any important state position don't be too quick to answer—you might be wrong.

If, for instance, one were to say that Henry Horner was governor of Illinois between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon he would be wrong—as that job will be filled by a Springfield Boy Scout, Robert Walker, 14 years old.

Other state, county, city and Federal officers in Springfield will surrender their posts for the hour to Boy Scouts during the day.

President's Work Relief Measure Barely Escaped Slash in Senate Committee; Faces Fight on Floor

Washington, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Roosevelt leaders, carrying the vast work and relief program to the floor of the Senate today, foresaw some furious debate but hoped to pass the measure within a week.

Finally extracted yesterday from an appropriations committee where critics had sought to change it before recognition, the bill bore nearly a score of alterations, most of them considered comparatively minor.

The critics sought reinforcements in the Senate at large in an attempt to continue their fight. Administration forces saw stiff contests to keep the $4,880,000,000 fund from being chopped down to $2,880,000,000, to maintain intact the

Hauptmann Jurors Out Eleven Hours: Failed to Recommend Leniency

Defense Lawyers to Carry On Fight to Save German

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 14.—Death has been decreed for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted of killing the Lindbergh baby, but his counsel drafted today a fight through high courts which may last months.

Prison precedent combined with judge and jury to fix the night of March 22 as the tentative date for Hauptmann's electrocution.

He was sentenced to "suffer death" the week of March 18, and Friday is doomday in the death house at Trenton.

While Hauptmann wept in his cell, Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense staff, said an appeal would be carried to the United States Supreme Court if necessary.

Court Procedure
The first tribunal expected to hear the plea, the state court of errors and appeals, meets for its next term late in May. The court of pardons will not hear it before October.

The jurors who sentenced him showed more emotion than did Hauptmann as he stood before them at 9:45 P. M. CST. yesterday.

With a look of affection, the 36-year-old prisoner turned to his faithful wife and said:
"It's all right, Annie."

Back in his cell, out of the gaze of the curious, Hauptmann burst into tears.

Jury Out 11 Hours
The jurors required more than 11 hours to reach their verdict. They were closely guarded after the case ended, but a courthouse report was that two of the four women had held out for a recommendation of mercy. That would have meant a life sentence.

There was no mention of mercy when the jury was polled.

With stuttering words, Foreman Charles Walton announced the verdict.

Sexton's Tragic Dream of Son's Death is True
East St. Louis, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP)—A tragic dream came true yesterday for L. Haskelson, sexton of the Agudas Achim Temple.

At the temple services, he told members of the congregation he had dreamed the night before that one of his sons had been killed in an automobile accident.

As the sexton started for home, he was informed that a son, Samuel, 37, had been crushed to death when a Pennsylvania freight train crashed into his truck.

STORE REFUNDED TAX
Jacksonville, Ill.—(AP)—Attorney William N. Hairgrove was refunded one cent from a chain store, which he had paid as sales tax on a purchase. Attorneys for the store paid the cent and $4.55 court costs in asking dismissal in Justice court.

SPRINGFIELD'S FORMER MAYOR HELD IN WEST?

Man Found on Coast May Be Schnepf, Al- leged Embezzler

Los Angeles, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Police early today took into custody an elderly man booked as John Mason, but whom they said may be John Schnepf, missing former mayor of Springfield, Ill., who has been sought for more than two years for questioning in connection with an alleged $400,000 embezzlement case in Springfield.

Police communicated with Sheriff Caulle and Prosecuting Attorney Greening of Springfield, who requested them to detain the man for further investigation. "Mason" was booked on "suspicion of being a fugitive."

Says Mind Went Blank
The man, between 60 and 65 years old, said his mind suddenly went blank about two years ago and the next thing he remembered was waking up in the Baptist Memorial hospital in Houston, Tex. Nurses, he said, told him his name was either John Mason or John Shepherd, and that a farmer had brought him to the institution.

The man said he adopted the name Mason for want of a better one, and set out to try to link up events in his life. He said he came to Los Angeles, traveled to New York, stopped in Chicago, in Springfield and other places, and finally came back here.

A former resident of Springfield, now living here, saw him on the street and told police he thought he was the missing Springfield mayor Schnepf. The informant's name was not disclosed.

A belt buckle in the elderly man's effects bore the initials "J. L. S."

First Effort to Free Skinner will be Argued Feb. 22

Judge Albert H. Manus of Freeport in the circuit court yesterday afternoon appointed Attorneys Clyde Smith and Harold Nims to represent Charles Skinner in the trial for the murder of Miss Olive Derwent, Amboy high school student.

Skinner appeared in court to be arraigned. Judge Manus set the bond in the indictment charging assault with a deadly weapon at $5000 and on the murder count Skinner was held without bail.

Attorneys for Skinner indicated that a motion would be filed to quash the indictment and Judge Manus set Feb. 22 as the date for a hearing on this motion which will be opposed by State's Attorney Edward Jones.

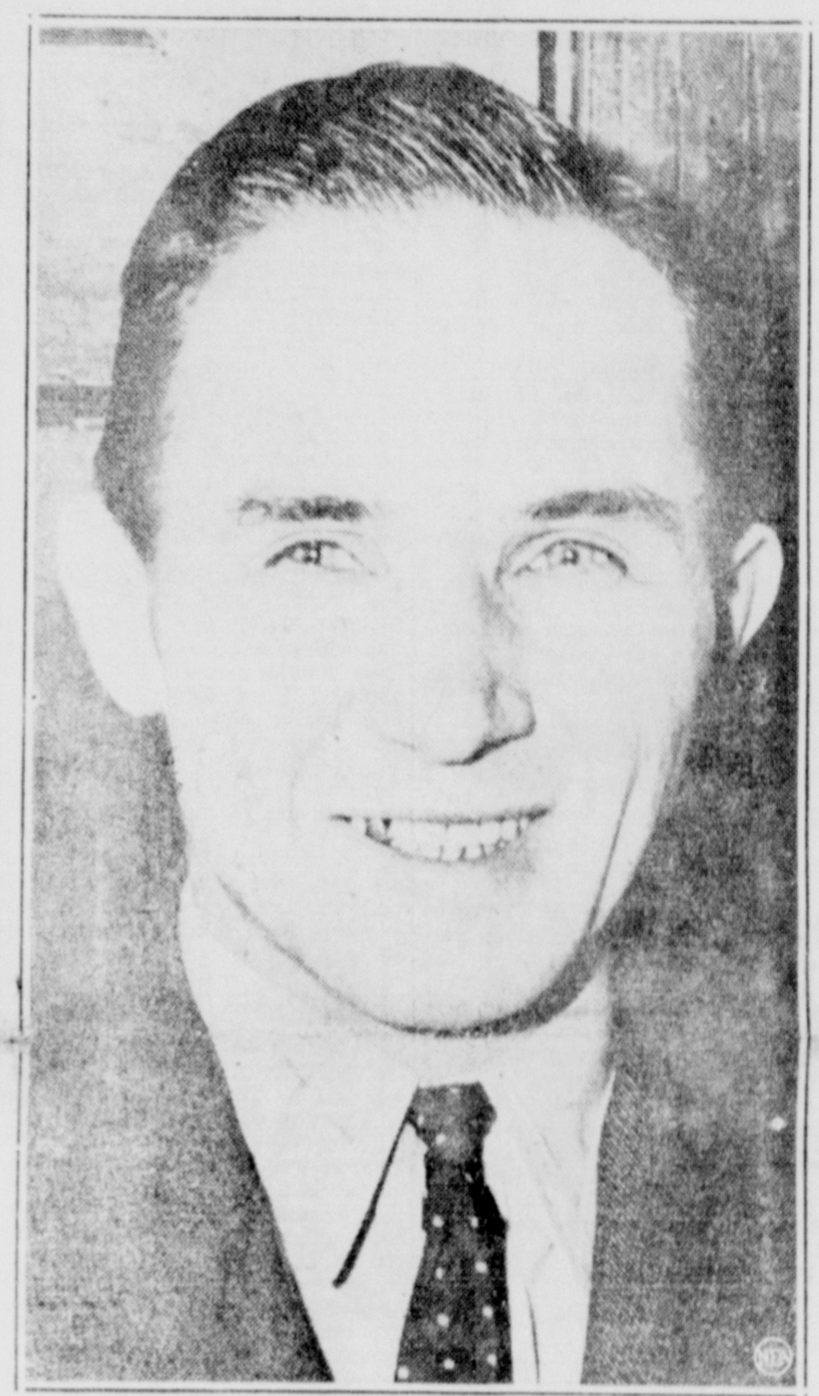

Mrs. Dorothy Brickle of Ashton appeared in court yesterday afternoon on an indictment charging her with assaulting her husband, William Brickle, with a deadly weapon and her bond was fixed in the sum of $5000 which was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Adam Eisenberg of Ashton. She is represented by Attorney Mark C. Keller.

State Highway Police Officer William Finn of Sterling was called to the scene of an accident about two miles east of this city about 6:30 o'clock Tuesday night when a car driven by W. E. Chapman of Cedar Rapids, with Paul Young, and Miss Vivian McIntyre of Dixon as passengers, ran into the rear of a truck driven by Albert Huber of Taylor Ridge, Ill. Both the truck and car were traveling west at the time.

Miss McIntyre sustained lacerations about the head and face, and Mr. Young and Mr. Chapman were also cut and bruised. They were given treatment at the Home hospital in Sterling and were then discharged. The car was considerably damaged.

LINDY REFUSES TO COMMENT ON JURY'S DECREE

Lone Eagle Plans for Trail-Blazing Air- plane Journey

Englewood, N. J., Feb. 14.—(AP)—The Hauptmann murder trial has written the closing chapter in the tragedy of their firstborn son, and Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh have no intention of adding a pistil script, be it ever so short.

Colonel Lindbergh had "no comment" nor statement on the case whatsoever. It was stated at the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, where the Colonel had gone hours before the verdict was announced at Flemington.

As long as the prosecution thought he could be of any help, as long as there were servants of the Lindberghs and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow to be defended the aviator attended the trial. As soon as the judge had charged the jury he left.

Last night's session was the only one he had missed in the 32 days the trial was under way.

Fear Madison World War Veteran Slain

Madison, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP)—An inquest will be held tonight into the death of Joseph C. W. Szwedzka, World War veteran, who was found with a bullet wound in his head at his home Saturday.

Accounts of other persons of a man's flight from the house early Saturday morning have led police to suspect Szwedzka was murdered. The pistol with which he was killed was found about five feet from the body and there were no powder burns about the fatal wound.

It was revealed at Edwardsville yesterday that Szwedzka had $3,895 on deposit in an East St. Louis bank and had a $4000 government insurance policy.

DEATH HOUSE TO RECEIVE BRUNO NEXT SATURDAY

Will be One of Six Con- victed Murderers in State's Prison

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 14.—(AP)—The little red brick death house at New Jersey's state prison, its guard doubled, was ready for Bruno Hauptmann today.

Some time within the next 48 hours the convicted slayer of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., will be placed in the barred cell facing down the long corridor to the door from which there is no return.

Sheriff John H. Curtiss of Hunterdon county at noon today said the prisoner would be brought here Saturday.

Governor Harold G. Hoffman, who received word of the verdict as he worked in the executive offices late last night, issued orders immediately that "every precaution" be taken and the death house guard doubled.

Four Fellow Convicts
When Hauptmann enters the high-walled prison, the third place of detention since his arrest last September, he will walk through the main corridor, across an open yard, and into the death house, in which 5 of the 18 cells are already occupied.

His cell is one of nine in the first tier. There will be several empty cells between him and other prisoners. A light in his cell, as well as the corridors, will burn all the time.

The present guard of three, who work in eight hour shifts, will be doubled. Two men constantly will patrol the corridor.

Injunction Giving Slot Machines Life Argued Feb. 27

Judge Frank J. Sheehan of Galien was in Dixon today presiding in the Lee county circuit court. Shortly before noon State's Attorney Edward Jones and Attorney Mark Keller appeared before him in his chambers in connection with the injunction granted by him last November permitting the operation of vending, more commonly known as slot machines, in Lee county.

Attorney Keller, appearing for the Mills Novelty Co. of Chicago, presented a motion to have the case referred to the Master in Chancery to permit his securing a foreign witness to testify at the hearing. This action was strongly opposed by State's Attorney Jones, who urged an early hearing to dispose of the temporary injunction.

Judge Sheehan stated that he had planned to come to Dixon in January to dispose of the injunction, but that his schedule had detained him and that he had expected to dispose of the action on his visit today. He set February 27 as the date for a hearing on the injunction and granted Attorney Keller a hearing upon his motion before the court at 1:30 this afternoon.

State's Attorney Jones, in opposing further delay, told the court that the injunction was a subject of importance and that a great deal of interest was current throughout the county.

"Roosevelt Will Not be Re-elected" Former Senator Glenn States at Cook Co. Republican Session

Chicago, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Cook county Republicans intend, even though the offices they hold are sent, to keep the party's vitality alive.

For that purpose party leaders gathered for a pep meeting and to hear former U. S. Senator Otto F. Glenn yesterday with the climactic statement, "Roosevelt won't be re-elected."

The meeting was a "Republican round table" dedicated to preserving the party's fighting spirit despite the fact it is taking no part in the coming city primary, a contest that thus far has lacked color.

Glenn asserted that the national administration's power had definitely broken down, evidenced, he said, by the fact that even a huge Democratic majority could not lead the United States into the World Court.

"The depression can no longer be called the 'Hoover depression,'" he said. "There are a million more unemployed now than at the end of the so-called Hoover depression."

"If these conditions continue, the whole structure of the administration will topple like a house of cards. I have believed and in fact believe now that Roosevelt will not be re-elected."

FIGHT TO SAVE BRUNO IS JUST BEGUN--REILLY

Chief Defense Lawyer Calls Verdict Mis- carriage of Law

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense counsel, today attacked the verdict and sentencing of Bruno Richard Hauptmann as "one of the greatest miscarriages of justice."

Reilly, after having taken breakfast in the Union hotel, stated to the press:

"It is one of the greatest miscarriages of justice when men psychology overcomes judicial calm."

"With all the handwriting experts, wood experts, and fancy pattern makers introduced by the state, millions of Americans are asking the questions, 'was Hauptmann in the nursery?' and 'how did he get there?'"

PICK UP APPEAL
A request for a stay of the death sentence will be the next move of his attorneys if they go forward with their announced intention of appealing his conviction.

Reilly said the defense would fight the conviction all the way to the supreme court of the United States if necessary. That court, however, has consistently declined to review any case in which no constitutional question is involved.

Attack Justice's Charge
The bulk of the defense exceptions were based upon the final charge given to the jury by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, and the attorneys indicated their arguments for reversal would be aimed at that charge.

The defense took a general exception to the whole charge and then recited numerous assertions of the court for which they begged and were allowed specific exceptions.

The attorneys charged the justice erred in not leaving various portions of the evidence to the recollection of the jury, and in one instance said the court had a "serious misconception" of the evidence. This concerned the court's recital of testimony that the baby's thumbguard had been tied to its sleeping suit. The defense said the testimony was that the thumbguard was tied to its wrist.

This thumbguard was found a hundred yards from the Lindbergh home by Betty Gow, nursemaid, a month after the crime, and the state contended it fixed the place where the sleeping suit was ripped from the dead child—thus supporting the theory that the child was murdered in Hunterdon county where Hauptmann was tried. The body was found in Mercer county.

Didn't Like Language
The court's language in its instructions also was the target of defense objections.

"As seems likely," was one phrase the court used when it discussed the state contention that a ladder was at the Lindbergh nursery window for the kidnaper's purpose of entry.

Other phrases which the defense contended the justice should not have used were:

"Do you believe that?" when he discussed the defense theory that a gang perpetrated the crime.

"Upon the whole is there any doubt in your mind as to the reliability of Dr. Condon's testimony?" when he discussed Dr. John F. (Falsie) Condon's identification of Hauptmann as the man to whom he paid the Lindbergh $50,000 ransom.

"Do You Believe That?"
"Do you believe that?" when he discussed Hauptmann's story that the dead Isidor Fish gave him a shoe box to keep, and that the shoe box contained, unknown to Hauptmann, the $14,600 ransom money which was found in his garage.

"Do you think that there is any reason on the whole to doubt the old man's testimony?" when he discussed the identification of Hauptmann as a man with a ladder in a car near the Lindbergh home on the day of the crime by Amundus Hochmuth, aged Sourland resident.

"Does not the evidence satisfy you that at least a part of the wood from which the ladder was built came out of the flooring of the attic of the defendant?" when he discussed the expert testimony given by Arthur Koehler, government wood technician.

Fought Ladder Evidence
The defense also fought the admission of the ladder to evidence, holding that it had been taken apart by the police and reconstructed. There were many other objections during the testimony, but none so vigorous as those taken to the charge.

Hauptmann's death sentence, his attorneys said, assures that part of the expense of an appeal must be borne by the state, since the defense will plead that he is without funds.

A hint that the state may fight such contention came in the summation of Attorney General David T. Wilentz, who charged then that the defense was financed by "cranks, idiots and fools—un-

Americans" and that it had spent more money than the state. The main objections to the charge were voiced by Egbert Rosecrans for the defense. Reilly added that to them an objection to what he said was a comparison between the defense and state witnesses when the Justice spoke of the prison records of several of Hauptmann's alibi witnesses. Reilly also objected because Justice Trenchard told the jury to take into consideration Hauptmann's interest in the outcome when determining the credibility of his own testimony. The defense chief thought the Justice should have given the same instruction about the testimony of Colonel Lindbergh, his relatives and servants. Jurors Took Six—

for the verdict that was finally delivered. Celebrated "Freedom" The eight men and four women did not retire until an early hour this morning, although they returned to the hotel across the street from the courthouse shortly before 11 o'clock. They "celebrated" the eve of the end of their 42 days of living together while they heard testimony in the case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

They came down to breakfast this morning shortly after 9 o'clock, looking somewhat refreshed and very patiently relieved that the strain was over. Broke Up Into Groups Instead of sitting at one long table behind a screen as they have for all their meals during the trial, they broke into smaller groups and used three separate tables. Liscom Case, the elderly carpenter, sat at a table with a group of the jury constables. He has a chronic heart ailment and has been under a doctor's care during the trial.

Oden Bagstrom, chief jury constable, said that "all the jurors are in excellent condition" and that no physician had been called for any of them after they were dismissed. The jurors were to return to their homes later today.

BRUNO'S MOTHER WRITES PLEA TO F. D. R. FOR SON

Acts Promptly on Hearing of Conviction of Son for Murder

By RUDOLF JOSTEN (Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press)

Kamenz, Germany, Feb. 14—Frau Pauline Hauptmann, heartbroken and sobbing, appealed today to President Roosevelt to save her son Bruno from the electric chair. "He will help an old mother," she said and sat down at once to write the President a letter. In it she said the President's failure to pardon Hauptmann would mean her own death. "I beg you to be merciful to him," she said. "Is there no God in heaven?" she sobbed, covering her face with her hands, as she learned the verdict. "I've hoped in vain all these months and now this terrible end."

For a moment the 69-year-old mother stood erect, her face chalk-line, her body quivering. Then with an air of one in a dream, tears streaming down her cheeks and her head leaning against a wall, she murmured: "Dying With Him" "I am dying with him. Has the world forgotten a lonesome old mother?"

The period of confusion passed. Frau Hauptmann wiped her eyes and said: "President Roosevelt—he will help an old mother." "I shall write him immediately and beg him to pardon my son."

With an effort to shake off her first bewilderment, Frau Hauptmann sat at a table to write, when a cablegram was delivered from Flemington. "Don't worry," it read, "decision only temporary. Annie."

The message, written in English, was translated for Frau Hauptmann by The Associated Press correspondent. She picked up a pen and with a trembling hand wrote in gothic script: Letter to Roosevelt "Dear Mr. President: "I am the mother of Bruno Richard Hauptmann and have today learned through newspapers of the terrible verdict against my son. Dear Mr. President, the World War has already taken from me my husband and two of my sons. I am 70 years old. (Her 70th birthday is next June.)

"It would mean my death, if you, Mister President, don't pardon my son because then I shall be all alone. "Mister President, disregard his previous offense for which the world must be held responsible. Bruno isn't a bad man. Therefore, I beg you to be merciful to him. "Yours, a poor mother, Frau Pauline Hauptmann."

The letter finished, the aged mother took it to the postoffice directly "so that it will be in the hands of this generous man as soon as possible." News of the verdict spread like wildfire through Kamenz. The local newspaper office, which put a hand written bulletin in its show window, was literally besieged by a crowd excitedly discussing the case. "Just think of the terrible blow to his poor, old mother," was the recurring expression. IS WITHOUT POWER Washington, Feb. 14—(AP)—President Roosevelt was described today as lacking power to pardon Bruno Richard Hauptmann as requested by his mother. The explanation given by the Justice Department was that the President only has power to pardon persons convicted in the federal courts for violations of federal statutes. Hauptmann's conviction was for a violation of a New Jersey statute.

CONTENTMENT

I'D RATHER browse in fresh green fields,
Where God's pure grass is grown.
Than through a maze of buildings high,
Where mortal-styles are now shown.

I'd rather hear the homey lap
Of a little singing stream.
Than list a fountain, gold-inlaid,
Pour out synthetic theme.

I'd rather have my mundane chore
And friends with faithful eyes,
Than have success and hosts of folks
Just wearing friendship's guise.

I'd rather live right where I am,
On postage-land—and sky—
Than cloistered by great walls, for there
I feel my soul would die.

Patricia Crawford.

Valentine's Day Makes Up Wish We Were Young Again

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Roses are red and violets blue

"Sugar is sweet and so are you."

We oldsters forget all about Valentine's Day until we see the hearts and flowers in the windows.

"For pity's sake," we sniffle, "Is that silly time around again? Why is this just a month or so since we were shelling out dimes for those same penny catchers? And we vow that for once we are going to keep the missies of Dan Cupid out of the house.

Anyhow what business have kids with all that stuff? "Roses are red!" "Will you be mine?" "I love you." "My heart is pining."

Trash, we think; disgusting to see little tots of six and eight and ten trafficking in romance. Instead of St. Valentine keeping his anniversaries by appealing to youth and the older sentimentalists, we figure truculently that he's turned baby snatcher. Well, we just won't have it, that's all. This year for once we will show that we have some character left and put a stop to the whole business.

Giving in to Demands

So when Bobby and Susy begin to go shopping we meekly go to our purses and say, as we dig for chicken food, "They have some beauties down at Snitzel's, children. And don't forget to buy one for Cousin

Louie."

I think the patron saint of lovers had the children in mind when he chose the doldrums of February for his annual try-out. We all need holidays, some leavening of existence and a break in monotony. If Valentine Day did not come along just now, we would probably have to invent a St. Probel's Day, or a St.

J. W. Riley Day, or a St. Pied-Piper

Day. Some sort of day in which the children could cook up a mercy time to satisfy a spiritual hunger for excitement.

We say and rightly too, "They have so much we did not used to have—movies and toys and car rides. Why do they insist on more?"

Inspiration for Activity

The answer is obvious. They insist on something they can do themselves. Something allowed to their choice, surprises they can plan, fun they can invent, shopping

they can do without supervision.

Then too they want something tangible. And they want color. It is satisfied by the lace paper and ribbon and lithographs of the average valentine. Besides it appeals to the social sense. Any sort of happy holiday draws them together like a tom-tom pulling the tribes

for a dance, or the dyed feathers and paint for war. It is human and therefore the same in children, to need a common cause.

They are fed up on abstracts like all the rest of us. The good of a holiday is immeasurable.

Passing Fancy

As to the sentiments on these bits of amorous pasteboard, rest yourself, dear mother. Some of them, alas, are common and vulgar.

As for love, doesn't every child on earth know there is such a thing?

He does today, anyhow. To him it is just one of those things like driving his own car some day, only less romantic. All contained in the world he will come to but hasn't reached yet. If Bobby buys five valentines for one girl and none for anybody else, don't run off to a moral clinic to find out why. He probably will do just this little thing. Don't tease him about it.

Look back, mother. Didn't you have a William Willeth, and did it hurt

you? Certainly not.

Well, your own William or your own Susanah are just that way.

Probably by tomorrow Billy will be pulling his lady love's hair or holding her cat by its tail. So much for childhood romance. Don't worry if all the valentines go to four, five or one boy. Just let us sigh and wish we were children again.

HUEY LONG: PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

(From Collier's Weekly)

Huey Long is a product of hard times. Like Upton Sinclair, Dr. Townsend, General Coxe of Coxe's Army fame, the Louisiana senator is a medicine man of politics vying quack remedies. Unlike these romantic spellbinders, Senator Long is an extremely hard-boiled boss comparable to Tammany's Croker, Pennsylvania's Penrose and Vare or Kansas City's present Tom Pendergast. In Louisiana, Senator Long built his power precisely in the manner of the unscrupulous bosses of many American cities. His methods are Tammany methods at Tammany's worst.

His radicalism is the cheapest variety of claptrap. What he is doing is attempting to capitalize for his own benefit the discontent and confusion felt by helpless people who have been plagued by the prolonged hardships of a changing era. Lust for power, not compassion for the poor, is his driving impulse.

A presidential candidate needs a platform. Mr. Long outlined his in his attack on the Administration. Here is the significant paragraph as reported in the Congressional Record:

"We have enacted laws that propose to take the taxes in the State of Louisiana off the back of the little man entirely, 100 per cent; which propose that no man owning a home or owning a farm worth or assessed for less than $2,000 shall pay any taxes whatever on that home or on that farm. That is the basis of the so-called 'dictatorship' about which there has been so much complaint heard in the State of Louisiana—that a farmer or a home-owner, owning a home worth or assessed for less than $2,000 should pay no taxes, county, district or state."

This is a simple appeal. Few people like to pay taxes. Senator Long proposes to exempt nearly 60 per cent of the property owners from paying any taxes.

Senator Long is counted most successful of the rabble-rousers. With a promise to exempt 90 percent of all farmers and nearly 60 per cent of all property owners from taxation, it is not hard to assemble a crowd.

President Roosevelt is lucky even in his enemy. If the President had the privilege of picking an antagonist for his own next campaign, surely he could find none more vulnerable. In such a contest there is no question of the verdict of the great decent and intelligent majority of American voters.

NEW DEBT DELUGE

One of the fascinating things about that Townsend old age pension plan is its astronomical mathematics. Its propagandists talk glibly of a trillion dollars' worth of business to provide the tax. It is through this vast gross turnover, they explain, that a two per cent tax would provide the necessary $20,000,000,000 or more a year which is the estimated cost of paying every man and woman over 60 a pension of $200 a month.

It must be understood that the Townsend tax is a tax on "transactions." Thus any particular article may be taxed not once but many times. Townsend "experts" estimate that goods, in moving from producer to consumer, are involved in an average of five transactions. Thus, assuming that the year's business turnover has a basic value of $200,000,000,000, that value taxed five times at 2 per cent each time will produce the $20,000,000,000 required.

So it would, if the estimates are correct, and if everybody stood for the tax, and it cost nothing to collect.

Obviously, though, it would amount to a 10 per cent annual sales tax on business, and nearly half the present national income. And that, added to all the other expenses that business pays, would destroy business before it got started. The pump wouldn't be primed—it would be flooded. We'd all be drowned in a new deluge of debt.

Both trees and men are living mechanisms more complex than any political state. Both are controlled by decentralized powers, from which messengers, as of the gods, transmit the signals for balanced action to all parts of the organism.—Dr. D. T. MacDougal, of the Carnegie Institution.

The rugged individualist is the only one who has anything to contribute to the flock. He is a rare bird and nothing should be done to suppress or discourage him.—President George B. Cutten, of Colgate University.

The rich men now have the life and happiness, while the rest of us have only the pursuit.—Senator Huey Long, paraphrasing a clause in the Declaration of Independence.

Labor controversies can best be handled with patience, intelligence, humor, and imagination.—Francis Biddle, NLRB chairman.

There is certainly no threat to democracy in a plan which would make true democracy possible.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

If we knew what automobiles were going to be like two years from today, we would build them now.—Charles F. Kettering, automotive engineer.

The farmer did not waste much time and to the bunch he soon said, "I am just waiting for the oil men. I have called them on the phone."

"The oil keeps flowing from the ground, and now it is spreading all around. It must be gathered up, and I can't do it all alone."

"The oil men will know what to do, and maybe they will call on you too to help them out. The work may be a lot of fun."

"Right now we'd better run along and eat, and then we will all feel strong. It takes real energy, when there is hard work to be done."

So, to the farmer's house they went, and there a happy hour was spent in eating ham and eggs and fine potatoes, fried up brown.

Soon Duncy said, "I have had enough. Oh, why did I sit here and stuff! I am so full of food now I don't think I can get down."

Then Scouty said, "Oh, that's too bad! You really are a clever lad."

You know that there is work to do, and want to dodge your share. "But, even if it starts a fuss, you will work just like the rest of us. We will get you down, even though we have to pull you over your big chair."

The farmer then jumped up and cried, "Hey, Tiniest, just look outside! The men are here! Come on I am going to tell them what to do."

"Real shortly they will start to drill for oil, and that will be a thrill. They'll have some great big derricks towering high before they are through."

All through the day the men worked fast and let the Tiniest help at last they finished up a shed where they could keep their tools and things.

And then a derrick rose in air, the farmer smiled and said, "Look there! I only hope that when we drill, a lot of oil it brings."

(The farmer plans a treat for the Tiniest in the next story.)

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Text: I Peter 2:11-17; 4:1-5
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 17
By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

From narrative and incident in the life of Peter, we turn to consider some of Peter's teachings and counsel to the early Christians, as contained in a letter to the churches. The emphasis in this temperance lesson is upon abstinence from evil and upon good behavior. The Christian was in an unique and difficult position in the ancient world, as he is in some measure in the world of today. He had given his heart and mind to a heavenly kingdom and to heavenly ideals while still living in an earthly situation, surrounded by people whose religions and ideal were pagan.

With this pagan religion and its ideals, all manner of things were consistent that are not consistent with purity of life and integrity of human relationships. The ancient cities and society in which these Christians lived were permeated with licentious practices. The standards of life were low.

Hence it was necessary constantly to warn the Christians against the ways of the world and to turn their eyes to the holiness of Christian living.

These Christians lived under political conditions where their very faith was apt to mark them for persecution. Therefore, it was all the more necessary that they should obey the law and give allegiance to rulers in everything in which their consciences could permit them to do so.

In general, Peter suggested that Christians should show the superiority of their faith and life by the quality of their living. They were men who had come into a great freedom; only they must use their freedom not as a privilege to offend their fellow men, but rather as an occasion of love and service.

Peter admonished them to fear God and to honor the king. It is not difficult to fear God, but it is not always easy to honor kings. Kings have not always shown themselves worthy of much honor, and though we have no king in a democracy, our rulers and statesmen do not always command our respect.

Yet we ought to have respect for all that rulers and statesmen themselves should stand for. If our laws are not right, if our political leaders are not men of integrity and honor and wisdom, we show the proper attitude of reverence toward law and government by doing all in our power to make them right.

The Christian should never permit himself to become cynical as a citizen. It is upon the quality of his faith and vision that the hope of a country depends. He must train his vision not upon the things that are defective in the world, but upon the glory of the Christ who came to make things right.

The deepest contribution he can make is to make his own life worthy, to avoid the evils that corrupt and destroy individuals and nations, and to find the satisfaction of life in seeking to live according to the will of God.

It is the way of disciplined living that is the way alike of true happiness and of security for individuals and nations.

POETS CORNERS

"THAT OLD CHENILLE COVER"
By Edith Andrew Burchell

As the Winters and Summers pass into the years,
Leaving sunshine and sadness and smiles and tears,
I see through the mist as Life's highways I roam
An old chenille cover—on the table back home.

Its colors were orange, deep reds and rich brown,
And a bright golden thread that ran in and around,
A garland of roses—of quaint autumn tone,
I see in that cover—on the table—back home.

The bright parlor carpet—with green leaves I now see,
And the tall corner mat—not with its treasures to me,
The big rocking chair of red plush—where Dad read,
(This chair made him sleepy—to sit in—he said.)

No castle in Spain—no rare jewels I see
Are as dear as that old rocking plush chair—to me,
And the old-fashioned organ with vases of blue,
That smiled so sweetly as the ivory keys flew.

Yes, the days with their sunsets pass into the night,
Leaving ashes-of-roses in memory's light—
But I wish—Oh, somehow, alone we could be,
Just Daddy and Mother—my brother—and me.

Oh, time, take me back to that dear little town,
Where places seem hallowed—where true friends are found,
And oft times in memory I feel myself roam—
To that old chenille cover—on the table—back home.

D. H. S. Chapter

The gymnasium of the Leaf River high school was the scene of much activity last Friday and Saturday.

It was the occasion for the Sectional Fair for Vocational Agriculture of Section One of Illinois. The exhibits at this fair were the grain, poultry, and potato products grown by high school boys as a part of their projects carried in connection with their study of vocational agriculture.

Because of the lateness of the season of various disease epidemic and other unavoidable reasons, the fair this year was not so large as it has been since it was first held three years ago. However, there was considerable interest shown by the boys who entered exhibits and by their parents and friends who enjoyed and profit by a fair of this sort. Much credit for the success of this fair is due to the persistent efforts of Principal S. R. Finin and his helpers. Although the number of entries was small, the quality of the exhibits was unusually good, especially was this true of the various corn classes.

Of the twenty three schools with departments of Vocational Agriculture in Section One, there were thirteen which had exhibits at the fair. The total number of boys making entries was 86 with Rochelle high school having 16 boys as the largest number of entries from any one school. The total entries made by these 86 boys was 224 with Dixon high school having 59 entries made by 15 boys. Naturally this group of boys carried off the larger portion of the cash prizes offered.

SUGGEST USE GAS REVENUES TO AID NEEDY

Double Purpose of the Gas Taxes is Pro- posed

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 14—(AP)—Simultaneous use of gas tax revenues for unemployment relief financing and highway construction has been proposed by president Earl C. Smith of the Illinois Agricultural Association.

To legislators he urged that:

1. Approximately $26,000,000 of uncommitted gas tax money be used this year in matching Federal relief grants.

2. The state funds be expended by relief agencies in the building and improvement of roads.

3. The work be done by persons now on the relief rolls.

Smith said his plan, outlined to downstate legislators would "end the dole" and make it unnecessary to levy new taxes to raise the $3,000,000 needed as the state's share of the relief burden.

For One Pct. Limit
The agricultural association's president opposed bills for auto license fee and gas tax reduction and for the enforced consolidation of school districts. He renewed his support of a revenue amendment to the state constitution, providing for a one per cent property tax limitation.

His proposal on relief came in advance of Governor Horner's second conference with the House and Senate executive committees to discuss ways and means of raising the necessary money.

In support of his relief plan, Smith said:

"This would carry out the spirit of the gas tax law by the use of the revenue on roads and streets. The people who pay the bill would get something worth while in better highways. The deserving unemployed would have an opportunity for work, and a pay check on Saturday night instead of a continued dole.

Suggests Motto
"As to relief, our motto should be: All those who work eat; all those who won't work, won't eat; all those who are unable to work we will take care of anyway."

Smith said that $26,000,000 of the anticipated gas tax funds for this year has not been pledged to other uses, which would leave only $1,000,000 for relief to come from other sources.

Auto license fees and the gas tax should not be reduced to the point where a property tax might be necessary to retire highway bonds, the agricultural spokesman declared.

He said the present three-cent-a-gallon gas tax is fair and opposed a flat $3 license fee, although suggesting a readjustment under which auto plates would cost from $6 to $12, based on a weight classification.

Friday night the walls of Dixon high school's commodious gym will ring out the battle cry of the ancient Romans, the Greeks, Trojans and practically every other great war-faring force of the past and go a long way into the future as to efficiency of every available person taking part and donating their share towards one fine game.

Coach Hugh Whaley and his squad of Royal Blue and Gold cagers of Sterling Township High will meet the Purple and White of the Sharpshooters in two North Central Conference cage tilts. The Pony tip-off will be approximately 7:15.

So far this season Sterling has been in the tie with DeKalb for first place honors in the Major division of the Conference. They have gone through their conference circuit with only one defeat registered against them and that was at the hands of DeKalb in a Barb gymnasium and only by one slender point.

During the first half of the loop 'Merry-go-round' Dixon played Sterling in their Coliseum. The Sharpshooters led them all the way through the game until 'Merry-go-round' was put off the floor with four persons chalked up against him. Davidson and Callaghan connected with two snipers and gave Sterling another Conference victory. Callaghan came through with eight points on that night and was the main factor in scoring defeat for Dixon. Tomorrow he will not be wearing a suit for Sterling, for he completed his eight semesters of school when first half of the school year ended. Callaghan's ineptitude made a great hole in the Sterling lineup. A tall-six footed sophomore by the name of Seagren was chosen to fill his place. Since Seagren has been in the starting lineup, Sterling has not suffered a defeat. The forwards will be taken care of by 'Pug' Davidson and Burns. All Dixon fans will remember this Davidson, a year ago when Sterling played Dixon in the Dixon gym he was the diminutive guard that time after time succeeded in dribbling through the purple and white defense for a goodly sized number of points. Burns is another fast moving man from the Twin-Cities, he played in the backfield on the football team. In the first meeting of Dixon and Sterling, Burns did not score a point but played a wonderful defensive game. Vipond and Long will be in the guard positions. Vipond got lucky in the last tilt and connected with four points before he went out on personals. If any of you fans have seen a Dixon-Sterling track meet during the past year or so, Vipond is Sterling's pole vault and every time proceeds to come down from bar head first and lights squarely on his neck. In his last meeting of Dixon in the Sterling line for the past two years, he is not much of a shot but is a hard man, around which to score any points. Long sank one field goal in the previous game, who can tell what he will do in this tilt?

Coach L. E. Sharpe has been having difficulty with some of his squad who are not training. Most of these men do not play regular on either team but never-the-less no one can play a good game of basketball if they are not in condition. The Dixon lineup will be strengthened by the return of Dan Fane. This regular guard had been out for a couple of weeks with a blister on his heel. Dan played part time in the Rochelle game and will probably be in fit condition to last throughout the Sterling combat. Underwood, Flanagan and Evans will fill the forwards. Rebuck at center, and Durkin, Fane or Cinnamon guards.

Pomies After Another Capt. 'Fiddle' Krug and his Dixon high light team will be in the mood for another conference victory and at the expense of the ones they would rather beat than any other junior team in the conference. In their first game with Sterling, the Junior Sharpshooters held Sterling with out a field goal. This is something of a record which no team has equalled so far this season in the lighter division of the conference.

You fans that have not seen a Dixon cage tilt this season, do not miss this one. You will get your money's worth in more ways than one. These two schools are the oldest rivals in North Illinois, and a great backing will follow the

Lee Hoopsters Whip Lee Center By 24-21 Score

Lee High School engaging Lee Center in a basketball game postponed from last week, defeated the Center quint 24 to 21 in a thrilling finale. In the preliminary game the Lee grade schoolers beat Le Center, 13 to 12.

The feature contest was nip and tuck from beginning to end. Lee Center held a 13 to 12 margin at half time and continued enjoying a thin one point advantage until the last two minutes of play.

CAMPBELL TAUT AWAITING GOOD BEACH FOR RUN

Quarters of Speed King Resemble Fight Camp

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 14—(AP)—If you close your eyes a little, let your imagination play a bit, this isn't the place where Sir Malcolm Campbell, the man who rides the four wheel thunderbolts, is waiting to lift the world's automobile speed record to 300 miles an hour.

It's a fight training camp, in atmosphere at least; even if it lacks the punching bags, the pads and water bottles, and the scaffold of a ring where sparring partners are all but executed daily.

The champion is the little man from Britain, Sir Malcolm Campbell and never was there a more restless, eager taut warrior waiting for the bell to ring. Around him are his counselors, his friends, his brought here from England with his helpers—the six mechanics he the majestic seven-ton Bluebird to smash the mile record of 272.108 miles an hour he set here two years ago.

Everyone is taut and snappy, as they are in a training camp on the day before the battle.

The 11 1/2 mile beach where Frank Lockhart and Lee Bilde died partly because they couldn't restrain their eagerness and rode for the record before the sand was perfectly smooth, still is rough and uneven for the speed Campbell is seeking.

Campbell treads it daily, waiting and hoping for the wind to turn to the northeast, blowing the high tides far upon the sands and leaving the surface at low tide as level and hard as a concrete road 40 yards wide.

But the wind won't turn and stay turned, and so the impatient champion storms.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lu Brodman

BEGIN HERE TODAY GALE HENDERSON is pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 10-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father.

STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill. Gale disappears before he learns her name.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to capture Brian.

Gale, at work in the mill, is summoned to the office of Miss GROVES, personnel director. Miss Groves makes it plain that if Gale will pass on information about her fellow employees it will be to Gale's advantage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXV

THERE was a clock on the bookcase facing the personnel director's desk. It was a small clock with a case of dark, polished wood. The ticking of the clock was the only sound that broke the stillness. It went "tick-tick, tick-tick," and to Gale it seemed to shriek.

She knew Miss Groves was waiting for her answer. Miss Groves was watching her. Gale looked down at her hands, clasped together in her lap, and said, "I—couldn't."

"I'm afraid I don't understand you."

"I don't know anything about the meetings you've been talking about," Gale said. "I've never been to any, and I don't know anyone who has. But if I did, I wouldn't want to come and tell about it. It sounds—sneaking to me."

"The lines about the older woman's mouth tightened and two sharp spots of color came into her cheeks. 'Don't be insolent!' she snapped. 'We have ways to cure insolence, too. How dare you suggest that I asked you to do anything sneaking or underhanded?'

"I didn't mean that, Miss Groves. I'm sorry it sounded that way. I only meant—well, that I'd rather not."

"What you meant is that you're an impertinent young woman. You—"

The anger died from the woman's voice but in her eyes there was a chilly gleam. "You will report to your foreman at once," she said. "At once!"

"Yes, Miss Groves."

Gale arose and went out into the corridor. She walked down the long hallway with rapidly beating heart. "It's done now," she thought. "I'll lose my job now. Oh, why couldn't I have told her I'd do it! Why didn't I say something—anything to make her think I agreed? I could have gotten out of it some how later. I'll lose my job now and what'll I do—?"

There were no harsh words from the foreman as Gale had expected. She did not see him again that afternoon. She went back to work, fingers flying with new energy. She'd worked harder, faster, she resolved. She had to keep that job. They couldn't possibly live, she and Phil and her father, on the little Phil made. It was hard enough skipping to make things come out even on her wages and Phil's together.

Ekky encountered his trouble swinging into the first turn when he was bumped first by World Services and then by Frank Ormont. He was knocked off stride so badly that the leader, speedy Ted Clark, was five lengths in front before Jockey Raymond (Sonny) Workman had the big chestnut settled down again.

The Whitney star raced out to contention on the back stretch going into fourth and then made his move on the second turn. Under mild urging he swept wide into the stretch and challenged Sweeping Light and Ted Clark.

To the wire they came, almost neck and neck. Ted Clark couldn't stand the pace, dropping back. Sweeping Light stood off the rush and won, ridden out.
